

The Year in Review

The first half of the 2007-08 academic year has been an eventful one. It started with the arrival of our two new fellows Chad Wagner, MD and Daniel Lewis, MD.

Chad is a Wake Forest lifer having been an undergrad, med student, and resident here in Winston-Salem. After 12 years he is actually starting to look like the Demon Deacon. Chad was gracious enough to take on the difficult task of accompanying the WFU women's basketball team to St. Thomas over Thanksgiving. Somehow between snorkeling and umbrella drinks he found time to actually do his job and help the girls to a tournament championship. He now claims his career niche is going to be Caribbean sports medicine expert.

Danny arrived from the family medicine residency in Greenwood, SC...and then promptly left for junkets to Colorado and Chicago as part of his term on the board of the American Academy of Family Physicians. You heard it here first, your dues go to opulent suites and trout fishing expeditions for board members. Danny's wife Jessica gave birth to their second son, Jackson, this fall...so I had to give him time off for that excuse too. In fact, if you see Danny or know of his whereabouts please forward him a copy of this newsletter.

Danny and Chad's exploits have not been limited to the sideline. The Twin City Cyclones asked us to help them with a commercial idea they had come up with so naturally I volunteered the fellows and our pediatric rotator Dudley Hammon. Go to the link below to see the best on- screen performance by a trio since The Three Stooges. After watching that you might understand why I haven't put "commercial producer" on my resume.

WFU Football

The Meineke Car Car Bowl caps off another successful WFU football season on December 29, 2007. We are looking forward to participating in the Richard Petty Driving Experience, wining and dining in Uptown Charlotte, and hopefully getting a free oil change and tire rotation. Speaking of a Richard Petty experience..... (See next page)

We enjoyed caring for the athletes and helping a great cause at the Victory Junction Gang Camp's Run to Victory five mile and half marathon road races.

I (Daryl) was asked to provide medical care to the cast of the amazing "Walk With Dinosaurs" show during their one week tour stop at the Joel Coliseum. Not surprisingly, wearing a 150 lb velociraptor suit every day can cause chronic back pain.

Alumni Update:

- I am the chair of the AMSSM subcommittee in charge of developing a common competency assessment system for primary care sports medicine fellowships. Thanks to Doug Comeau for his help with this group's efforts.
- Doug is also a co-author of the chapter "Rheumatology and musculoskeletal problems" in the new 7th edition of Rakel's Textbook of Family Medicine
- Matt Silvis reports he has been named the principle investigator on a fully funded sports hernia study at the Penn State College of Medicine.
- The abstracts for the four research posters presented at the 2007 AMSSM meeting were published in the October issue of the Clinical Journal of Sports Medicine
- Congratulations to Heath and resident John Hyden for their recent publication through the Family Practice Inquiries Network: Hyden JC, Thornton HC, Clinch RC. How should physicians indicate risk on sports physical forms? Evidence Based Practice 2007; 10:5-6.
- Word on the street is that Scott Black has changed addresses in the Blue Grass State, moving from the University of Louisville to the University of Kentucky to work in student health and take care of the Wildcats.

Noteworthy:

- We will be taking an even more official role with Winston-Salem State as team physicians. Heath and Sara will be leading the effort by splitting training room time in the brand new fieldhouse attached to Bowman Gray Stadium.
- For those of you that have had the pleasure of working with Steve Wiley out at Wake we had to say goodbye to him this fall when he moved closer to home in Lynchburg, VA for family reasons. Please keep Steve and his family in your thoughts and prayers.
- Josh Fallin filled in as athletic trainer for the Wake Forest Men's soccer team in their run to the national championship once the Warthogs season ended. Danny and Chad want it known that winning the College Cup trumps the Orange Bowl or field hockey successes claimed by past fellows.
- We are working on obtaining an ultrasound machine for musculoskeletal and obstetric uses here in the department of family medicine. If any well-to-do private practice alums are willing to make a donation we'd be willing to name a probe or maybe a bottle of gel in your honor.

And Finally.....Please keep us posted on your personal and career developments. I hope to see all of you out at the AMSSM meeting March 25-29 in fabulous Las Vegas, Nevada. Sincerely, Daryl
